

Have you learned nothing from history? Money is the downfall of society. To allow companies to monopolize on the internet is asking for an uprising. America will be thrown into a depression again and it will be due to those who profit upon the poor masses. The internet is a tool that millions use to express themselves and exercise their freedom of speech. It is a way for policy makers to inform their citizens about the goings in government. To take this and institute a paywall to profit upon this service is to silence millions of voices and discourage the public from government participation. How then, does a government function when its people are silenced? If the government is not for the people, then it is not a government at all, but a tyrant. Net neutrality is the only thing that keeps the people safe from corporations becoming monopolies. For the sake of the populace, do the right thing and do not repeal the net neutrality act.
